In the mountains

SNOWDON MOUNTAIN RAILWAY

The Snowdon Mountain Railway climbs more than 3,000 feet up to the top of Snowdon, the highest mountain in England and Wales. The trip from Llanberis takes approximately one hour and on a clear day you can see Merseyside in England, the Isle of Anglesey, the Wicklow Mountains in Ireland and the Isle of Man.

The first train each day leaves Llanberis at 9am, weather permitting. The last train from the summit leaves at 5pm. Trains will not go all the way to the top if winds become too strong or if the track is covered in ice or snow. Open daily from 15th March until 1st November.

BIKING

Explore the mountains the exciting way! Hire a mountain bike for a day or a week, the choice is yours. Full day – £8, half day – £5. Ring 01574-554586 for details.

Historical sites

CAERNARFON CASTLE

One of Europe's greatest medieval fortresses, it was built in the 13th century by Edward I of England as part of his strategy to subdue the Welsh. The castle is very well preserved. An audiovisual display tells the story of the building of Caernarfon and its rich history.

Open 9.30am–5pm daily, all year round. Special events: The King's Storyteller, 26 May, 28 July. Normal admission.

OFFA'S DYKE LONG-DISTANCE FOOTPATH

177-mile-long footpath that follows the boundary constructed in the 8th century by the Mercurian king Offa as a means of keeping the Welsh out of England.

Contact Offa's Dyke Centre on 01547-528753 for information about organised hiking parties or maps of the area.

LLECHWEDD SLATE MINES

Former miners take visitors underground into the slate quarry to tell them about the often horrible working conditions endured by miners in the Victorian era. Visitors ride on a very steep funicular railway down to the heart of the mine. There, underground, you can see a display showing the life of a slate miner and his family. Back up on the surface, you can visit a typical Victorian village.

Open daily: 9.00–18.00. Last mine tour begins 50 min before closing time.

KING ARTHUR'S LABYRINTH IN CORRIS NEAR MACHYNLLETH

Sail on an underground river into the Labyrinth, a series of caverns and caves under the Braichgoch mountain. In the caverns, Welsh tales of King Arthur are told with tableaux and stunning sound effects.

The temperature underground is cool. Please wear sensible footwear. Helmets will be provided. Open every day from March to October between 10am and 5pm (last tour). Please phone 01654-761584 for details of winter visits.
