There is a certain atmosphere surrounding somebody who lives in Washington. I don't know why but, for some strange reason, everybody seems to think that you know more _____ what is going on than they do, and a fellow who makes his home in the nation's capital can look forward _____ being invited to lots of parties. As a matter of fact he can eat and drink for nothing in many parts of the country just _____ he happens to live in Washington.

I discovered this when I went up to New York recently and to my surprise was _____ to a series of dinner parties. Everyone was most interested in learning about _____ was going on in Washington and, to begin with, I was quite honest and admitted I _____ no idea. Not only did this disappoint the people I was dining with, it also _____ them angry. They couldn't believe that I didn't know and assumed I wasn't _____ the truth.

At the first dinner party the hostess told me when I was leaving, “We didn’t expect you to tell us everything, but I see no reason why you have to protect the Administration.” I decided then and there I would _____⁹ to come up with some inside information, or else I would have to pay for _____¹⁰ own meals in New York.

So the next morning I went through all the morning papers and also took time to _____¹¹ TV for the latest news. When I arrived at the dinner party, I was well prepared to discuss almost _____¹². “What do they say about taxes in Washington?” a distinguished lawyer _____¹³ to know, as I picked up my first drink.

“I’ve heard that _____¹⁴ will probably be a tax cut next year,” I said as I popped an olive into my mouth.

“Can you tell us what the President _____¹⁵ to do about Latin America?”

“I’m sorry!” I said. “There are some things the President discusses with me that I just can’t _____¹⁶ about in public.”

“Quite true,” the lawyer agreed. “There’s no point in revealing everything. You’ve probably told us more than you should _____¹⁷ done anyway.”

For the next three days I had more _____¹⁸ to dinner parties than I could accept. But it has _____¹⁹ quite a strain. I have to go on reading so many newspapers and watching so many TV shows from Washington that sometimes I wonder if it’s _____²⁰ the trouble.
