

SAHLGRENKA ACADEMY

The purpose of the study is to expand our understanding of work capacity in conjunction with common mental health issues, such as depression and anxiety. Another purpose is to investigate how different working conditions impact capacity to work in people with mental health issues compared to people without these issues. It is therefore important that everyone invited to this survey do respond, whether or not one may experience mental health problems.

For this study, we are recruiting participants through both unions and employers, but they are not involved in the study itself in any other way and will not be informed how any individual responded to the survey. To answer one of the study questions you will be asked if we can follow up on sick leave data through the Swedish Social Insurance Agency's register. The maximum follow-up period is 12 months from the date you completed the survey.

The principal investigator of the study is Professor Gunnel Hensing at the Department of Community Medicine and Public Health, Sahlgrenska Academy, University of Gothenburg. If you have any questions, please contact us: professor Gunnel Hensing, tel. 031-786 6862, e-mail: gunnel.hensing@gu.se or assistant researcher Agneta Blomberg, tel. 031-786 3222, e-mail: agneta.blomberg@gu.se.

Your personal data will be treated in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR EU 2016/679). The survey takes about 15 minutes to complete, and you don't have to answer all the questions at once, you can pause the survey and resume when convenient.
